

MTTLR Symposium 2015: Privacy, Technology and the Law

MTTLR is pleased to announce “Privacy, Technology and the Law,” a symposium which will take place on Saturday, February 21, 2015 at the University of Michigan Law School. This symposium will bring together a diverse set of perspectives on privacy and technology for the discussion of an important topic at a critical time in the development of the surrounding legal doctrines. The symposium will include three distinct discussion panels. Each panelist will give a short presentation, followed by a question and answer session. Snacks and refreshments will be provided, and the symposium is free and open to all.

The first panel will address theories of privacy in light of how the emergence of “Big Data” has changed our societal norms and challenged the way in which the law treats private actors with respect to privacy issues.

The second panel will address how the privacy laws in other countries have responded to the problems posed by new technological advances, and how the relationship between domestic and foreign privacy regimes has affected an increasingly global economy.

The third panel will address the ways in which technological advances have challenged our criminal procedure and Fourth Amendment jurisprudence, and have posed new problems for law enforcement officials.

Symposium Schedule

Friday, February 20, 2015

7:00 pm Welcome Dinner

Saturday, February 21, 2015

9:00 am Check-in and Breakfast

9:30 am Panel #1: Theories of Privacy and the Role of “Big Data”

- Scott Peppet, University of Colorado-Boulder School of Law
- Shaun Spencer, University of Massachusetts School of Law
- Alan Rubel, University of Wisconsin-Madison
- J. Alex Halderman, University of Michigan

11:15am Light snacks and refreshments

11:30 am Panel #2: International Perspectives on Privacy, Technology and the Law

- Dennis D. Hirsch, Capital University Law School
- Joel Reidenberg, Fordham Law School
- Jonathon Penney, Berkman/Oxford/Dalhousie
- Colin Bennett, University of Victoria
- Margot Kaminski, Ohio State University Moritz College of Law

1:15 pm Lunch

1:45 pm Panel #3: Technological Advances and Criminal Procedure

- Christopher Slobogin, Vanderbilt University School of Law
- Luke M. Milligan, University of Louisville Louis D. Brandeis School of Law
- Susan Freiwald, University of San Francisco School of Law
- Ric Simmons, Ohio State University Moritz College of Law